

R. I. Operator At Mokena Overcome By Gas Fumes

A leak in a gas main near the Rock Island depot in Mokena came near having fatal results last week. The forepart of the week a strong, strange odor was noticed in the depot, being particularly strong in the telegraph office. John C. Nielsen, local agent had a headache every night. Thursday night, Whitney Carter, telegraph operator, was overcome by the gas fumes and was just able to open a window in the telegraph office to get fresh air. He was nearly in a state of collapse.

Frank Huser, the third trick operator also was affected by the deadly fumes.

The Public Service Company was notified and upon investigating the matter it was discovered that there was a leak in the gas main at a point where service lines to the Mokena State Bank and Morry's Tavern branch off. The fumes followed a string of drain tile running thru the railroad yard. Pipes containing rods operating the interlocking plant west of the depot are near the tile and escaping gas followed the interlocking plant pipes into the telegraph office. The fumes appeared strongest in the vicinity of the interlocking plant levers.

Compressed air drills had to be used to dig down to the gas main and it was found that the frost had penetrated down to a depth of 42 inches.

The work of repairing the main was carried on in a below zero temperature. After several hours the job was completed during the night.

The depot was so filled with the gas fumes that a window had to be kept partly open in the telegraph office for several days to air out the room.

20 Water Service Lines Frozen Up In Mokena

Over twenty families in Mokena are without village water as the result of water pipes freezing. There is no way to thaw them out and if water was not being used constantly the village water mains would also freeze shut as the frost has penetrated down beyond the water line of five feet.

Water users on Niethammer street were without village water Saturday morning when the water pipes froze up. Friday night a water main near the Fred Hentsch place on Wolf Road burst from the cold and flooded the basement of the Hentsch residence, ruining many edibles.

In Orland Park about fifteen village water users are without water service as a result of the pipes leading from the village water mains into the dwellings being frozen.

The frigid wave has been the worst ever known here and the frost has penetrated deeper into the ground than was ever known of before. The frozen water pipes will evidently remain out of commission until warm weather comes. In the meantime those home owners having drilled or dug wells are fortunate and are sharing their water supply with their less fortunate neighbors.

Use Drills To Dig Graves In Wis.

Sherman S. Knox of Orland Park received a telegram late Saturday telling of the sudden death of his uncle James Sherman Knox who resided on a farm 7 miles from Mauston, Wisconsin on an Indian reservation. He left the same night and arrived in Wisconsin Sunday. He had a hard trip getting to his uncle's farm due to mountainous snow banks. The thermometer was 34 degrees below zero.

Drills had to be used to dig the grave and frost was found at a depth of 6 feet. Funeral services were held Monday with the thermometer standing at 32 below zero.

Ditched Cars Keep Orland Garage Busy

The garage of Adolph Zerbs in Orland Park has been a very busy place during the frigid winter weather. Saturday night he was called out to tow a driver in who was driving two new Nash automobiles through from Kenosha, Wisconsin to Danville, Indiana. The driver got stalled in a snow bank in Palos Park. The cars were still in the local garage Tuesday awaiting to be thawed out.

Monday morning Mr. Zerbs had a hurry call that a car had skidded off the Southwest Highway near Marley. Upon arrival he found that the car had turned over on its top with the wheels in the air. Luckily the driver escaped injury. The later was driving from Joliet to Harvey when the accident occurred.

Tinley Mayor Is Stricken By Stroke

Mayor August Habenicht of Tinley Park was stricken with a paralytic stroke in the village water pumping station Tuesday afternoon and was rendered speechless. He was removed to his home at once but has not recovered from the attack.

Mr. Habenicht was assisting in some mechanical work at the pumping station and was carrying a piece of pipe when seized with the stroke. He slumped over in a chair and was unable to speak. Fred Schmediknecht and Fred Goebel saw him slump in the chair and immediately secured help to take him to his home.

Tinley To Meet Lemont Friday Nite

Back again in their winning ways the TYO Boys will meet one of its strongest opponents Friday evening when they tangle with Lemont. The latter boast an imposing lineup of high school stars.

The TYO Girls will play the Lemont Girls, with a promise of regaining their former stride. Tinley will seek revenge on this formidable quintet. A real game is promised.

Bad weather has dogged the TYO teams all year and opposing teams have found traveling difficult. Sunday, Chicago Heights was halted by slippery pavements. However two games were offered. The Harvey Merchants trounced the TYO Girls 35 to 19; to avenge this defeat the TYO Boys ran through the Hamilton Parkers with a final score of 43 to 19.

Remember the two big games—Friday, Feb. 21, with contests starting at 7:30 p. m.

Coopers Grove Young People To Give Play

The three-act comedy, "The Gay Pretenders," by Walter Richardson, will be presented by the members of the Cooper's Grove St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Young People's society on next Tuesday evening, Feb. 25, at 8:15 in the Tinley Park public school auditorium.

The leading roles of this play, which is being directed by Mrs. H. F. Meyer, has Philip Zum Mallen playing the part of Richard Tully and Esther Hotchkin the part of Irene Tully. The supporting cast of characters includes the following:

Erwin Wille, as Charles Jones; Hilda Horstman, as Susan Jones; Edwin Cohrs, as Uncle Hiram; Dora Nietfeldt, as Aunt Mirandy; Walter Meinheit, as Rufus; and Edna Henke as Deliah.

Music between the acts will be played by the Chicago Heights St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Orchestra, Walter Haderer directing.

Plays by this group during the past have given them the reputation for presenting extremely popular comedies and this year's play, which the committee believes to excel those in the past, has every indication that this coming presentation will draw a capacity crowd.

Lincoln Day Banquet Is Held By Co. Republicans

A Lincoln Day Banquet was held under the auspices of the Will County Republican organizations, Thursday February 13 in the Rialto Cafeteria, in Joliet at 7:30 p. m., with music and specialties on the program.

The affair was one of the largest gatherings of Republicans brought together in this part of the state, according to reports from A. C. Jeffrey, Chairman of Will Co., Central Committee.

The main speaker of the evening was Dr. George Henry Bradford of Miami, Florida, who came to the state of his birth, Illinois to address the Republicans of this county.

Dr. Bradford is a Methodist clergyman. He says, in these times, "it is not a question of politics, but one of saving the union," and in his address on "Lincoln and the Constitution," he definitely contrasted the present Roosevelt administration and its tendencies with those of its predecessors.

"Lincoln has definite and fixed value in society as electricity has, when measured by the engineer. He was a known fixed element in the court room, in Congress or in the White House. He knew, as every American knows, that you can't play baseball without a book of rules and an umpire. The president New Deal administration wants to scrap the book of rules, which is the constitution, and fire the umpire, which is the Supreme Court."

"It is not a question of how you die on the battlefield, but how you live day by day in the market place," said Dr. Bradford, in replying to a question concerning the place of the veteran's of the great war in American life.

Dr. Bradford is one of the most eloquent men of the public platform today, and has been by turn, a minister and university president.

Operating 2 Wells

In order to augment the village water supply, Tinley Park has installed a booster pump which is connected with a reserve village well so that two pumps are now operating from two wells to insure a steady water supply for local needs and for fire protection.

Seven Pets Shot After Showing Rabies Tendency

Tinley Park had a veritable slaughter of dogs last week to prevent spread of the dreaded rabies, seven dogs in all being shot. A dog belonging to Albert Nelson first went mad and bit a number of other dogs which resulted in the killing. A pure bred collie belonging to Dr. R. H. Carmichael was also bitten and is being treated in a dog hospital in Chicago.

The mad dogs attacked several persons, but fortunate the heavy shoes and overcoats they wore, prevented the bites of going thru into the flesh, altho the skin was black and blue. No new rabies cases have been reported.

New Lenox To Vote At New Polling Places

A special election for the purpose of voting on the issuing of bonds for the building of a County jail will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 25.

New Lenox Township having been divided into two precincts, the polling place for voters residing east of Cedar Road will be at Colonial hall. Voters west of Cedar Road will cast their votes in Urch hall. Polls will be open from 6 a. m. until 5 p. m.

GREEN GARDEN SCHOOL TO HOLD 75TH JUBILEE

On February 28th the 75th jubilee of the deeding of land for educational purposes in District No. 153, Green Garden Township will be held in the Green Garden Town Hall commencing at 8 p. m. The program will be given by former and present pupils and residents of the district.

Following is an interesting historical sketch of the origin and continuation of school district 153 of Green Garden Township.

On September 3, 1861, a plot of ground in Township No. 34 Range No. 12 was deeded over for a school ground by Geo. M. Green and Lucy, his wife. It was known as District No. 1 but in 1902 it was changed to District No. 153.

The earliest records show that in 1868 S. A. Angel, John Bobzin and L. A. Angel were members of the School Board.

At that time Emily Vandoset was teacher, receiving $30 a month salary. She taught a term of 12 weeks beginning December 7, 1868. There was usually a term of 8 or 12 weeks in early winter and again one beginning in April or May. There were 41 pupils enrolled in 1868.

As far as is known the oldest living teachers of District No. 153 are Miss Annie Stellwagen who taught in 1891-92; Mrs. Geo. Andrew (Ida Stephen) of Frankfort, who taught in 1893-94; and the former Miss R. De Zsivanovits of Joliet, who taught in 1895-96.

The old school house still stands but constant repairs and improvements have kept it in fine condition. The latest improvements of the past year include plastering and redecorating the school room, installing a new stove and purchasing a set of World books for the library. District 153 may well be proud of its school.

Following is the entire program to be presented Feb. 28 in connection with the 75th Jubilee celebration:

Tinley Business Men Resume Movies

After a lapse of two weeks, the Business men of Tinley Park have again taken up their fine public work of providing good clean and entertaining amusement for the general public of their community and the surrounding country-side, in the shape of movies at a reasonable price.

The past two Saturday nights have been given up to the American Legion for the benefit of their W. L. S. stage show.

The extreme weather conditions made a postponement necessary the first week.

The ever increasing public demand and fine attendance of the Saturday night movies has been most gratifying to the Tinley Park Business men.

This regular weekly movies show seems to fill a desired public need. Especially during the cold winter months, it provides a place of good entertainment at a reasonable price and close to home.

The 15c charge made for admission does not quite cover the expense of producing the performance, but the Businessmen's Association makes up the difference.

So long as the enthusiasm and patronage for this weekly show exists, the businessmen of Tinley Park will continue to sponsor its production.

THE BEAUTY FROM BUFFALO

By R. H. WILKINSON

© Associated Newspapers.—WNU Service.

I HAD begun to despair of Marcia Venn. Venn was her most recent name. Her sixth. Yes, Marcia had been married six times. And she was only twenty-five. Once she had lived with a husband eight months. That was the longest. His name was Tommy Harris. We all admired him. I had begun to despair of Marcia because I felt that she had the markings of a fine wife. I don't know why. Instinct, I guess. Her choice of mates to date included a wide variety: An artist, a soldier, an explorer, a politician, a baseball player. None had suited her. And now she was married to good old Jim Venn. Jim was a business man.

Needless to say, Marcia was the most beautiful woman in Buffalo. She had more than beauty. That indefinable something that is a female's most cherished gift. She always got what she wanted, except in a husband. The five that she had tried lacked it. We wondered about Jim Venn. Good old Jim Venn.

Jim himself told me the story. There was a wild, desperate look in his eyes, which presently gave way to relief.

They were happy the first month. Marcia and her husbands were always happy the first month. A week later Marcia bought a new coat. Mink. She had it sent out from one of the most expensive downtown shops. When Jim came home she was waiting for him, with the coat on.

"How do you like it?" she asked, and pirouetted for him.

"How much did it cost?" said Jim.

Marcia stopped prouetting. "Jim Venn, what a thing to say! Whatever has the cost to do with how it looks?"

"A lot," said Jim. "If it cost over a hundred bucks, it would look like h—l to me."

Marcia stared at him. She was incredulous. Slowly, horribly, the significance of what he'd said seeped into her brain. A sob escaped her lips. "You wretch! You unspeakable wretch!"

Jim strode over to the table where lay the box in which the coat had come. He picked up a pink slip and looked at it. "Nine hundred dollars!" he exclaimed, whirling. "You must be crazy!"

"If it Cost Over a Hundred Bucks," said Jim, "It Would Look Like H—l to Me."

Marcia knew how to get what she wanted. She'd been through scenes like this a hundred times before. She flung herself on the divan and sobbed convulsively. Not ordinary sobs. Marcia could be dramatic. She beat the pillows and buried her head. Jim came and stood over her.

"Take it off," he said. "That's more dough than I can afford."

Marcia became hysterical. Or sounded so. "I won't! I won't! Oh, you beast! Why did I ever marry you?"

"Because," said Jim, "I was jackass enough to ask you." And he reached down and jerked Marcia to a sitting position. Before she could fully grasp what he was about he had stripped off the mink and flung it on the table.

Marcia hadn't expected this. She hadn't experienced anything like it before. She forgot to sob dramatically. Instead she leaped to her feet, and there was genuine anger in her voice and eyes. "Why—you—you!" Her tiny fist struck Jim on the cheek. Color rushed into his face. Angry lights smoldered in his eyes.

"So!" he said. "You can't be a lady." And with his open palm he smacked her down on the divan again.

Marcia couldn't believe it. Imagine the most beautiful girl in Buffalo, a girl with six husbands to her credit, being smacked down by a mere Jim Venn. Words wouldn't come. She opened and closed her mouth like a fish out of water.

Jim laughed cruelly, harshly, tauntingly. Marcia found her voice.

"Brut! Beast! Insect! This is the end! The very end! I'll not stay in this house another minute!"

"Yes you will," said Jim. "You're not going to make a fool of me." He picked her up. She struggled, fought, bit, screamed. But he carried her into the bedroom and dumped her unceremoniously on to the bed. "When you can quit your bawling and blubbering you can come out and get my dinner." At the door he paused. "And if you break one thing, it'll come out of your allowance."

He slammed the door and locked it. Marcia pushed on the other side. She screamed, threatened, wept, kicked. But she didn't break anything. An hour later she went into a conference with herself, decided on other tactics. Sweetly she called to Jim.

"Darling, I'm sorry. And—hungry. I'd like to get our dinner."

Jim let her out. But he didn't take her into his arms and kiss her. He didn't apologize and ask forgiveness.

Instead he told her he had returned the mink coat, stopped all her charge accounts, and reminded her that if she ever did anything crazy again he'd divorce her.

Marcia's lips quivered. Angry tears brimmed in her eyes. "Divorce me! You will divorce me? Why?" She stopped. Jim looked at her though he were going to hit her again. He said: "You'd better get my dinner. We're staying in tonight. I'm sick of horsing around to your danged parties. I want a home and a wife, not a house with a woman who visits me occasionally."

Marcia caught on. She went out and got his dinner. She tried to make up while they were eating. But Jim wasn't in the mood for it. He went to bed early, and didn't kiss her good night.

Marcia sat up by herself for a long time. She was angry and humiliated, conscious of an annoying feeling of frustration. She planned dire things. She would get her revenge. She would do this and that and thus and so. Oh, would she humble that man!

At twelve o'clock she went upstairs. Jim was snoring comfortably. When he awoke the next morning Marcia's bed was empty. He grinned and listened. Well, well, well. The most beautiful girl in Buffalo, the girl with five previous husbands to her credit, was down in the kitchen, rustling up a breakfast for a belligerent sixth mate—and liking it.

Jim wasn't really belligerent. Moreover, he loved Marcia more than the other five husbands put together had. He would have killed himself if she left him. But he was smart. Smart and desperate. Smart enough to analyze the dispositions of the other five; desperate enough to put into execution the one form of treatment Marcia hadn't experienced. And it had worked.

You see, Marcia hadn't known what it was she wanted in a husband. If you'd told her it was what Jim Venn offered, she'd have told you you were crazy. She'd still tell you. For she's never found the answer. But then, she's no longer interested. It's fun, being a little bewildered—and married to Jim Venn.

French Digging Dugouts Find Relics of 400-1600

Far below the ground on the island in the Seine from which rise the graceful towers of Notre Dame laborers hastily building protections against the next war are finding reminders of other wars, of long forgotten invasions, harrowing sieges and revolutions nearly two thousand years into the past, reports a Paris United Press writer.

In the courtyard of the somber Republican Guard barracks on the Ile de la Cité laborers have been excavating for a huge shelter against air bombardment. Archeologists were called in when the workmen came upon ruins showing that this was not the first time Paris had been called on to protect itself.

Walls and columns of an ancient chapel and a church were discovered. Searchers revealed ruins varying in date from the Fourth century to the French revolution, and turned up human remains.

Archeologists are confident that they will find another section of the original wall of the ancient Gallic city of Lutetia, and thus piece together ruins recalling the first attacks by barbarians from the north and east, the days when St. Genevieve saved the small mud-but city from the Huns, and the epoch when Clovis made it his capital. They have found structures dating to the Fourth century, to the siege by the Normans in 885, to the Fifteenth and Sixteenth centuries and remains of flats built during the French revolution, when the state took over property of the church.

Aime Grimault, inspector of the commission of Old Paris, revealed that the workmen had uncovered the floor of a chapel built in the Fourth century, when Paris was a few mud houses huddled on an island in the Seine in a swampy, uninhabited but strategic valley. This chapel was called St. John the Baptist, and its early history is lost in the obscurity of the ancient Gallic town, which was first mentioned in Caesar's Commentaries as Lutetia.

Copy of "Vinegar Bible"

A copy of the famous "Vinegar Bible" has been restored to Eastry church, near Dover, England, whose property it was over 100 years ago. This Bible was printed in 1717 and owes its name to a printer's error in which "vineyard" became "vinegar" in one of the headings. The copy was bought at a second-hand book stall for one pound, 10 shillings. There are other Bibles which have contained much more glaring mistakes. And some of these may have been intentional. For instance, "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall inherit the Kingdom of God?" (I Cor. 4:9), which appeared in a Bible issued in 1653, may have been a hit at Cromwell and the Puritans, who were then in power, by a royalist compositor with a turn of sarcasm.

Third Set of Teeth

The cutting of a new set of teeth in extreme old age has often been attributed to old people—but no case of an aged individual cutting a new tooth is admitted by dentists. The jaw sometimes shrinks in old age and exposes the stump of an old tooth previously concealed, erroneously regarded as a "new" tooth.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted

by William Bruckart

National Press Building

Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Five important stones in the New Deal recovery arch have been torn from their

been torn from their moorings now and from all of the comments I have been able to pick up, it appears that the general situation has been clarified thereby. Two of the major New Deal items—the NRA and the AAA—have been tossed overboard by the Supreme court of the United States and congress, at the request of the President, now has thrown three others into the limbo of unnecessary things by repealing the legislation for control of cotton, tobacco and potatoes. These three with their parent, the Agricultural Adjustment act, represented all that was basic in the New Deal farm program.

The importance of the President's act in requesting repeal of the three compulsory crop-control laws cannot be minimized. Mr. Roosevelt recognized, when the AAA was invalidated, that the other three crop-control laws would be of no further use because they were predicated upon the national law. He recognized further that to remain adamant would be only to permit delay in invalidation of those three laws because they were all headed for an adverse decision by the Supreme court anyway. In seeking their repeal, therefore, Mr. Roosevelt simply took time by the forelock and girded his armor for a fresh start on farm relief legislation.

Where or in what form the new farm legislation will finally emerge, none can foretell. The house and senate will pass some kind of legislation to supplant the laws invalidated by the court or repealed by congress. Necessarily, this new farm legislation will be of a stop-gap character and I don't believe that any of its ardent supporters can tell you exactly what the result will be in so far as its effect upon agriculture is concerned.

As far as the compromises have been worked out, it appears that some of the leaders are willing again to enact legislation directed at crop-control in a semi-compulsory manner. If that is forthcoming, the new law actually will be nothing more than a thinly disguised attempt to circumvent the prohibitions laid down in the Supreme court opinion holding the AAA unconstitutional. In any event, the tragedy in the situation appears to me to be the absence of clear thinking, or else the circumstances we see represent political cowardice of the worst type.

It is to be remembered that in this session of congress more than any other since President Roosevelt took office, there exist a greater number of blocs; cross currents of opinion; partisan jealousy. A great deal of it is in opposition to brain trust policies sponsored by the New Deal but for political reasons the individuals who oppose these things dare not openly show their disapproval of Presidential policies as such. Thus, a consensus has arisen among Washington observers that representatives and senators concerned with directing enactment of new farm legislation are likely to mess up the situation rather than come forth with a definite and workable proposition.

Partisan Politics Rule

The situation at the White House and in congress in connection with agricultural policies probably is the best illustration in a definite, tangible form, of how many important federal policies are being dealt with in a partisan political way rather than, as they should be, in a scientific manner with partisan politics in the background. I need not recall how many pieces of legislation have been put through congress bearing a New Deal tag of "must." Of course, Mr. Roosevelt cannot be blamed entirely for issuing orders when congress is willing to obey. It is a fact, nevertheless, that time after time and with reference to the major New Deal experiments, the legislation has been drafted by men serving under a Presidential appointment in executive departments, the copies forwarded to given representatives or senators and instructions passed along that the administration will take no substitute. It wants the specific measure and in that form.

The result of all of this has been that in numerous cases legislation was passed without more than a few members of the house and senate having even read the bills before they were asked to cast a favorable vote on their passage.

Now, representatives and senators are seeking to dodge the responsibility for their acts. This was shown definitely in the celerity with which congress acted on the Presidential request for repeal of the three crop-control acts named heretofore. I know personally of a considerable number of representatives and senators who were delighted at the opportunity to vote repeal of those laws. They never did like them—after they found out what they had passed. But a politician is the last person in the world to admit his mistakes and the representatives and senators who voted for repeal of the crop-control laws with such enthusiasm were no different than the others. The repeal request simply gave them an opportunity to get out from under a thing which, if the legislation had gone through processes usual and normal for congress, they would never have taken in the first place.

Admits His Mistake

President Roosevelt likely will receive some credit for seeking repeal of the discredited laws. He said if he made a mistake he would be the first to admit it. So, now he has in a way admitted that he made a mistake in approving those laws although his statement concerning the repeal request was that these were useless without AAA.

It is to be noted, however, that long before the Supreme court outlawed AAA there was a growing volume of discontent with the principles that law sought to apply. It cannot be that Mr. Roosevelt was not aware of this growing dissatisfaction and that his political advisers smelled a rat because a good many plans for modification had been under discussion privately among AAA advisers long before a Supreme court decision was in prospect. Practical men working with Secretary Wallace and Administrator Davis were steadily trying to accomplish changes in administration of the AAA law, and the three others as well, to make it workable. They were confronted, however, with a superabundance of brain trusters who could make a beautiful case in print for their views and during that time the brain trusters had the ear of the President while the practical administrators were left out in the cold.

It is thus that we see a development under the New Deal whereby most of the responsible people are attempting to dodge the responsibility that belongs to them. Some of them are attempting to clean their own skirts, or make their skirts appear clean, by damning the Supreme court; others are blaming our "system" for failure of the theories to work in practical application and still other groups point the finger of scorn at those charged with administration of the agricultural policy, blaming them for the failure. Things like this have developed before in Washington and have died down in due time but I believe that seldom, if ever, has occurred a situation in which the responsibility was so general and the blame so generally denied by those responsible.

Must Cut Borrowing

Washington observers are watching the President's latest maneuvers on government finance with considerable interest. The President, you know, already has told agencies of the government that are equipped with borrowing power that they must reduce this borrowing. He has, in effect, withdrawn from them authorization that would have permitted the borrowing of about $1,000,000,000 during the next year.

During the last few weeks, the Chief Executive has been concerned also with reduction in governmental spending and at the same time with plans to raise additional money. He has presented a tax bill to congress, an obstinate congress. Representatives and senators do not like to campaign after passing a new tax bill so they frankly do not like the idea of new taxes at this time.

It is too early to forecast the full importance of the President's latest moves. There are those who insist that Mr. Roosevelt is making a sincere effort to cut down government spending and to convince the nation that he is seeking to reduce the waste that is naturally attendant upon such a volume of disbursements of money as has taken place in the last three years. There are others who take the position that the President is simply building up a picture which can be shown to the voters when election time comes. They say that Mr. Roosevelt wants to be in a position to point to an accomplished reduction in federal expenditures and to assure the voters that he had permitted only such expenditures as were necessary to bring the country out of the depression.

An unbiased conclusion is that a little of each claim is true. If expenditures actually are reduced, obviously the action will be welcomed by the taxpayers. On the other hand, the ballyhoo that went out from the White House and executive departments concerning the withdrawal of borrowing power was rather unjustified. It was unjustified for the reason that the move was simply a bookkeeping proposition and, further, there was even a hint that such agencies as the Reconstruction Finance corporation and Home Owners Loan corporation had no plans for borrowing extensively during the forthcoming summer and fall.

If one looks into the future in connection with the Presidential program of curtailing borrowing and cutting expenditures, it is rather difficult to escape the thought that a continuation of policies such as have been sponsored by the New Deal in the last three years will force a renewal of these expenditures in due course. In other words, the administration course respecting these expenditures is going to depend upon the results of the November election. If Mr. Roosevelt is returned to the White House and he continues with a substantial Democratic majority in congress, there is no reason to believe that present spending policies will be entirely abandoned.

Something Brand New in Necklines

PATTERN NO. 1784-B

An unusually clever and interesting yoke treatment, front and back, distinguishes this altogether lovely daytime frock. With the neck opening at the back, the V-shaped yoke extends over the shoulder and combines with a soft high neckline to give a new and flattering collar effect, equally fetching front and back. Full set-in sleeves drop gracefully to the wrist and the waist portion gathers to the yoke in the rear to provide essential fullness. A flaring panel, as fashion dictates, features an otherwise simple skirt which is dart-fitted at the back and a novelty belt adds a finishing touch.

Fashioned of soft silk, printed or plain, in amber or green or the always fashionable black, this striking all-occasion frock will add zest to your winter wardrobe and see you through the coming spring. It will wear well under a wrap and appear doubly attractive when the wrap or coat is removed.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1784-B is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 16 (34) requires 4 yards of 39-inch material. Every Barbara Bell Pattern includes an illustrated instruction guide which is easy to understand. Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1784-B

And So the First Hunger Strike Was a Decided Flop

Without the least cynical intent, we would point out to you the story of one of the first hunger strikers, published in the Golden Book Magazine.

"The Widow of Ephesus," relates Petronius, was a lady of so high repute for chastity that women came from neighboring lands to see and admire. When her husband died, she followed him to his tomb, determined to stay with him until she, too, should die of hunger. But it happened that a handsome young soldier was stationed nearby to guard three robbers who had been crucified, in order to prevent anyone removing their bodies and giving them burial. He discovered the widow, and believing it a great pity that anyone so beautiful should be allowed to perish, finally persuaded her to share his food. The soldier was neither ill-looking nor wanting in address, and says Petronius, "you all know what temptations assail poor human nature after a hearty meal." We leave you to finish the story for yourself.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

MR. AND MRS. QUACK ARE STARTLED

IT WAS the evening of the day after the closing of the hunting season of Lightfoot the Deer. Jolly, round, red Mr. Sun had gone to bed behind the Purple Hills and the Black Shadows had crept out across the Big River. Mr. and Mrs. Quack were getting their evening meal among the brown stalks of the wild rice along the edge of the Big River. They took turns in searching for the rice grains in the mud. While Mrs. Quack tipped up and seemed to stand on her head as she searched in the mud for rice, Mr. Quack kept watch for possible danger. Then Mrs. Quack took her turn at keeping watch while Mr. Quack stood on his head and hunted for rice.

It was wonderfully quiet and peaceful. There was not even a ripple on the Big River. It was so quiet that they could hear the barking of a dog at a farmhouse a mile away. They were far enough out from the bank to have nothing to fear from Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote. So they had nothing to fear from anyone save Hooty the Owl. It was for Hooty that they took turns in watching. It was just the hour when Hooty likes best to hunt.

By and by they heard Hooty's hunting call. It was far away in the Green Forest. Then Mr. and Mrs. Quack felt easier and they talked in low, contented voices. They felt that for a while at least there was nothing to fear. Suddenly a little splash out in the Big River caught Mr. Quack's attention. As Mrs. Quack brought her head up out of the water Mr. Quack warned her to keep quiet. Noiselessly they swam among the brown stalks until they could see out across the Big River.

There was another little splash out there in the middle. It wasn't the splash made by a fish; it was a splash made by some one much bigger than any fish. Presently they made out a silver line moving toward them from the Black Shadows. They knew exactly what it meant. It meant that

INVITING DISHES

WHEN cooking carrots add a silver of onion to the vegetable while cooking, and the addition of a stalk of celery will make the dish, when served with a little butter, quite different.

Mutton and Peas.

Take a piece of lamb or mutton for stewing, simmer in boiling water with an onion, three cloves, two peppercorns and an eighth of a bay leaf for flavor. When tender, remove the meat to a hot platter and make a gravy of the liquor from the kettle. Strain and add to it a cupful or two of fresh cooked green peas. More seasoning of salt and pepper may be needed and a half teaspoonful of sugar will make the dish much more tasty. Seasonings are always much more effective if added while the food is cooking.

Date Crackers.

Put a pound of well-washed dates with a cupful of sugar and a half cupful of water in a saucepan and cook until soft and smooth. Cool. Cream together one cupful each of shortening and brown sugar, two and one-half cupfuls of rolled oats that have been parched to a light brown, add two cupfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of soda in half a cupful of hot water. Mix well, roll out very thin and cut into rounds. Place a spoonful of the fruit on the cookie and cover with another.

Cheese Salad.

Dissolve a tablespoonful of gelatin in four tablespoonfuls of hot water, add one-half pound of grated cheese someone was out there in the Big River moving toward them.

Could it be a boat containing a hunter? With their necks stretched high Mr. and Mrs. Quack watched. They were ready to take to their strong wings the instant they discovered danger. But they did not want to fly until they were sure that it was danger approaching. They were startled, very much startled.

Presently they made out what looked like the branch of a tree moving over the water toward them. That was queer, very queer. Mr. Quack said so. Mrs. Quack said so. Both were growing more and more suspicious. They couldn't understand at all, and it is always best to be suspicious of things we cannot understand. Mr. and Mrs. Quack half lifted their wings to fly.

Leg Broken, Dog Walks Into Hospital

APPARENTLY struck by a careless motorist, this dog showed unusual sense by walking unattended right into Receiving hospital in Detroit. Rather than disillusion by shipping him to the Humane society, attending physicians accepted "Measles," as he was christened, as a charity patient, and set his broken leg in a cast. The story has an even happier ending, because an orderly immediately adopted the dog as a pet and took him home to convalesce. The photograph shows Dr. Myron Rosenbaum placing the dog's leg in a cast while Nurse Vic Gauthier holds him. Looking on is Orderly Eric Newman, who adopted the pup.

He makes a trip of over 70 miles each day. Most of the roads in the vicinity of Tinley Park have been kept in Three passable condition during the heavy snow and severe cold. Some of the Or la country gravel roads which were opened have begun to drift shut again, some snow banks being 3 to 4 feet deep.

e proper treatment or a bilious child

IE STEPS TO RELIEVING CONSTIPATION

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage. Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, must be carefully regulated as to dosage.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

The doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative most families use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

Don't forget members to attend if possible as there are not many more meetings in this club calendar.

The Tinley Park Business Men's Association met in regular monthly session in the Tinley Park school on Tuesday night. Election of officers was in order and the members re-elected all the old officers. The organization is headed by Fred Hick as president.

The sub-zero weather has caused a number of service water pipes to freeze. A service pipe leading from the main to the Funk Brothers Tavern froze and burst the latter part of the week. It was with great difficulty that the broken pipe was repaired due to the hard digging thru three feet of frost. The extreme cold weather prevent the men from completing the job Sunday so the work had to be carried over to Monday before water service could be restored.

The Tinley Park Business Men's Association is planning for another carnival to be held sometime during the summer. The same carnival company which put on the carnival here last October is being contacted to show here again next summer.

The postmaster of Oak Forest visited with Postmaster Paul Rauhoff Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Lorraine Funk is taking a dictaphone course in Chicago.

The Tinley Park Volunteer Fire Department will meet the first Tuesday evening in March at the local village hall. At this time a private party will be held at which ten new firemen will be initiated. A feed is to follow.

Kenneth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Niemann underwent an appendicitis operation in St. Francis hospital in Blue Island last week.

He returned home Wednesday afternoon of this week and is getting along nicely.

Henry Boldt left Sunday for Chicago to take up his new duties with an advertising service concern. His local sign painting and window trimming business has been taken up by Walter Bruening and Marshall Olson who have been in the employ of Mr. Boldt. The many friends of Mr. Boldt wish him much success in his new work.

Walter Mancke continues to improve nicely from his recent operation.

On Wednesday evening, Feb. 19 a church party was held in the Tinley Park M. E. church. The children of the church school and their parents enjoyed a social evening. The games were directed by Rev. Paul Hastings. The ladies of the church served refreshments. All enjoyed a good time.

THE TYO TATTLER

Well everybody don't forget the regular basketball game this Friday night when the TYO teams tangle with Lemont in two good games.

We regret to inform you that "Battler" Nielsen has been on the sick list the last few days. He must not be able to stand the fair sex. The rest of the basketball team sure hope he'll be in form for the game Friday night.

Ollie and Siemie enjoyed a show with two Harvey girls Saturday night.

Who is the young Romeo that wants to walk a certain Flossy home after the roller skating, but can't get up enough nerve?

Eddie was caught with his little "wife" at the Chicago Saturday.

Was Siemie sorry that he was out of town Sunday night when his gal friend came out to roller skate.

Swisher has acquired a watch dog from Fulton for his future love nest.

It looks as though Fulton fell for Joan at the dance Saturday night.

Fritz was that a nice box of candy that you received from Art?

Gervie seemed to be having a swell time with Lois. Somebody from Blue Island the other night.

L. L. Rothenberg who hauls milk for the Tinley Park and Worth dairies every day from beyond Manteno, only missed one day during all the sub-zero weather and that was due to snow bound roads. He makes a trip of over 70 miles each day.

Most of the roads in the vicinity of Tinley Park have been kept in passable condition during the heavy snow and severe cold. Some of the country gravel roads which were opened have begun to drift shut again, some snow banks being 3 to 4 feet deep.

He made the plane in short order and got the dead policeman to the cabin by way of the wing. Leaping off, he rushed back at top speed to meet Lilith. He had to go all the way to where he had left her.

She had slung the showshoes on her back, floundered through the first drift, and collapsed. When he came up, she was rubbing snow on her bared ankle. She looked up at him, white-faced with pain and despair.

"I tried, Alan. I can't even walk," she said. "Go back. It's all my fault. Hurry and save yourself. Maybe I can—delay him."

For reply, Garth swung her up across his shoulders and headed again for the plane. There still might be time. He put all his strength into another burst of speed.

They came to the glacier stream, with no sight or sound of the pursuers behind them. Garth lifted the girl from his shoulder and set her on the front edge of the monoplane wing. He grasped hold to vault up beside her.

A bullet fanned the girl's pain-whitened cheek. Another bullet struck the wing edge between her and Garth. He jerked her down off the wing. The firing ceased. But the angle of the shot in the wing edge told Garth the direction from which it had come.

After murdering Constable Dillon but before starting to trail Garth, Huxby must have sent one of his men running along the foot of the tundra slope to take possession of the planes. Garth had outrun the miner. But the man had come within easy rifle range and clear view of the plane—at least of its upper parts.

Garth did not hesitate a split second. He carried Lilith to the mooring tree and slashed the line with his knife. Then, taking the girl pickaback, he set off up the stream bank.

His one backward glance showed him that the plane was drifting out into the lake. But, the cross-wind had died down. The lessened stream current could be counted upon to carry the plane out beyond reach before it was stopped by the skim ice.

The rifleman up on the edge of the tundra was off to the right of the stream. Garth knew he had a thick screen of spruce trees and scrub all the way to timberline. As he climbed, the man above began to yell and halloo. Garth had no doubt that the halloo was shouting about the outdrift of the cabin plane.

Before long, other yells came from the lake shore. They were followed by rifle shots. It was easy to guess that one or more of the pursuers had sighted the plane and opened fire, on the supposition that Garth was hidden in the cockpit. The shouts of the man above told that he was running downhill, probably to let the others know he had kept the fugitives from getting aboard.

Garth moderated his rush. Even so, his steady uphill sloping brought him near timberline before the four men got together down at the lake shore. From the sudden stoppage of the firing, he knew the fourth man had explained the situation. Yet he did not quicken his climbing pace.

For the first time since leaving the plane, he spoke to Lilith: "Try holding out farther from my neck, Miss Ramill. We're safe enough now. We're climbing faster than they can wade the drifts."

With less than a hundred paces, Garth saw a whitish pall surge out from the down-rolling clouds on the western mountain side. A snow-spitting wind-gust whooshed against the tundra slope. He turned sharp to the left and headed uphill towards the foot of the glacier. Before he had covered another hundred paces, the air was thick with snow.

Fortunately for Lilith, the storm was not an early autumn blizzard, not a 30 or 40 below zero gale of the subarctic winter. The rabbit-fur undersuit inside the buckskins saved her. Though greatly chilled, she was only slightly frostbitten when Garth reached the brink of the lateral moraine, a little below the foot of the glacier.

He went out across the rock-strewn gulch bed. Within a few moments Lilith suddenly found herself out of the wind and snow and the white gloom of the storm. She could not see. Her elbow rasped along a smooth wall. Then she was placed upon a ledge.

A match flared in Garth's upraised hand. The light glinted and sparkled on ice walls. She was in the mouth of the cave, up inside the glacier-stream tunnel. The rock floor was heaped with the caribou meat. At the side of the entrance lay the potshole stone that Garth had made into an Eskimo lamp.

He pointed to an outspread caribou skin. "Crawl in on that. Then rub your face and pound yourself."

She scrambled to the skin mat, her teeth clenched on her lip to keep from crying out from the pain of her ankle. Garth had struck another match and held it to the moss wick of the stone lamp. A third match was necessary before enough of the frozen fat was thawed and melted to feed the wick. But, once started, the flame heated more and more of the fat.

Lilith had already rubbed her frost-whitened cheeks and nose into a glow.

He laid his belt-ax on a hind-quarter of caribou, and smiled at her in the growing light of the wick.

"Chop off a shank or two. We'll need bone spits," he said. "But first warm some of the other skins and wrap them around you. Also put more fat in the lamp. I'll be gone two or three hours."

Over near the far end of the glacier front, he found a drift with a four-inch crust packed by the drive of the wind during the previous snowstorm. He went at it like an Eskimo, slashing out big domino-shaped blocks with his knife.

After he had gathered a high pile of the blocks on a fairly level spot just beyond the drift, he started to cut others and lay them edgewise in a circular wall around the pile. Two feet up he began to lean the blocks inward.

By the end of three hours, he stood in the blackness of a snow beehive, half a foot higher than his head and over seven feet across at the floor level.

For the First Time Since Leaving the Plane, He Spoke to Lilith.

Low down in the wall he cut a hole. There was little more than space enough between the igloo and the glacier front for him to crawl out. He circled around the snow dome and the big drift, through the thick swirl of snow, and recrossed the stream.

In the cave he found Lilith fur-bundled and hovering over the lamp, as she broiled thawed caribou steaks on a shank-bone spit. He picked the girl up in her skin wrappings, and carried her out and around to the igloo. A second trip fetched the rest of the skins, the lamp, and enough meat for a starter.

While she went on with her cooking, over the re-lighted lamp, he cut more blocks and built a low entrance tunnel from the door to part way around the curve of the igloo wall. When he backed in, he blocked the mouth of the tunnel with a snow slab.

The inside of the igloo was already so warm from the lamp heat that the inside of the dome roof was beginning to soften. But Garth knew there was no slightest danger of it falling in. As fast as the snow melted, the moisture was sucked outwards. It met the cold of the outside air and froze hard.

In a little while the igloo would be a dome of solid ice strong enough to hold the weight of a bear. The interior was both warmer and drier than any tent, or any hut of wood or stone. The caribou skins made even the snow floor comfortable.

The girl had a stack of caribou steaks broiled for him. He sat down, without a word, and began to eat. In the midst of the meal the smoke and heat became so stifling that he had to cut a two-inch ventilation hole in the roof.

All the time he gave no sign that he perceived the look of misery in Lilith's eyes. But when he had eaten his fill, he spoke a sudden order: "Bare your foot."

She obeyed, tensely silent. He looked close at the swollen ankle in the lamp-light and felt it with his finger tips. Easy as was his touch, Lilith gasped with pain. But he smiled his relief.

"No broken bone or dislocation; only a sprain. You'll soon be all right. Start packing it with softened snow. Keep it as cold as you can without freezing."

At that, all her pent-up emotion burst out: "Oh, how you must despise me! Get you into this frightful danger—then go lame! A helpless, useless drag on you! That beastly coward—he'll hunt you out . . . murder you like the poor policeman. And all my fault!"

Garth shook his head. "You take too much of the credit, Miss Ramill. So far as regards Constable Dillon, the result would have been the same if you had stayed at Fort Simpson."

"But—but you can't get away!" Garth's smile hardened. "Neither can they. Now tend to your ankle. I'm going for meat."

He dressed and crawled out into the storm. When at last he came back in, he had brought nearly half of the caribou meat from the ice cave and stacked it around the igloo. He had also set up blocks of snow-crust to shape a drift of new snow in a certain way.

He unrolled the thawed wolverine pelt and showed a big hank of catgut. With his knife he started to shape caribou skins for parkas and trousers. Lilith's eyes brightened. She softened a length of catgut in the melted lamp-fat, and asked for a needle.

All the remainder of that day of death and storm, both of them piled awl and buckskin needle and catgut thread. Neither was an Eskimo seamstress. But their stitches, though coarse, were strong. By nightfall they finished the first caribou-skin suit—waistlong seck-leggings, and parka with hood-front fringed with wolverine fur.

After another meal of broiled meat, Garth went out and climbed the lateral moraine to gather a quantity of caribou moss from between the snow-drifts on the wind-swept tundra.

When he returned, Lilith lay asleep on one of the uncut skins. She had sunk down, completely tired out. Garth covered her over, blocked the roof hole with a chunk of soft snow, and spread his own skin mat on the other side of the lamp from the girl. He lay down on it and snuffed out the light.

CHAPTER X

The Bedeviling.

Lilith opened her eyes as Garth finished his hasty meal of lamp-seared meat and fat. He explained about the plane. Her hands clutched together till they whitened.

"You—you'll be careful?"

"Never fear. I'll come back to look out for you. The storm has blown over. Clear sky, and about 10 below zero. Keep treating your ankle, and work on your suit."

"But—how long?"

He handed her the knife, but took the belt-ax. "If I'm not back soon, it will not be till late afternoon or after dark. They may turn out early, like myself, to have a look at their plane. In that case, I'll have to hide-out all day."

"You'll freeze!"

That won a smile from him. "This is an Eskimo rig. I've sat in one for hours beside a seal hole, at 40 below zero. Finish your own suit, and crawl out to enjoy the frost. Only, be careful of that ankle. When outside, keep close to the igloo, and duck inside if you see anyone else than myself."

She flung out her hands. "Oh, if only I could go along to help! I'm so afraid he'll find you. All those guns—he and his men—you, empty-handed!"

Garth met the almost frantic outburst with a look of cool irony. "Do you take me for a chechaho? Mark this—that scoundrel Huxby is the man who's in danger."

With the assurance, Garth crept out through the tunnel, showing his snowshoes ahead of him. Snow had continued to fall after the wind had died down. That meant easy tracking. In the dim starlight, he had to guess at the covering of his trail to the stream channel.

During the night, the last dwindling flow had choked the channel with anchor ice, had flooded over the snow, and frozen solid. Garth took off his snowshoes and crept across the glare ice without leaving any marks.

On the other bank, he plowed a heavy trail up into the ice tunnel, and brought from the storage cave one of the remaining legs of caribou. He left the meat atop the moraine, and started down the tundra as fast as he could travel by starlight.

Dawn was grayed over the east mountain wall of the valley when he neared the lake. He crossed over the frozen ford and went to peer at the three-seater plane in the growing twilight. It stood much higher than he had left it.

A close view showed that the engineer and his men had managed to raise the craft above water by cribbing logs under the shattered pontoons. The top logs of the crib brought the bottom of the floats level with the thickening skim ice. Long poles had been set to brace the wings against the wind gusts.

Garth swung aboard. As he expected, all the food had been taken away. So also had been the breaker points from the magneto. Huxby no doubt had figured that the canoe builder might repair the floats with rawhide, and run away with the three-seater. To balk the engineer, in turn, Garth helped himself to the breaker cam.

He jumped back on the bank, and rushed eastwards along the shore in the dim grayness. At first, thickets of alders and willows cut off all view of the lake. He did not trouble to seek an opening until he had covered a half mile. There he came to a remembered stretch of partly open bank.

Though the gray dawn had grown a little less faint, he peered for several moments without sighting the cabin plane. It seemed as if its pontoons must have been sawed through by the sharp-edged sheet of ice, so that the aircraft had foundered in deep water.

But then he made out vaguely a white shape against the white of the snow-covered ice. A short dash brought him close to the grounded plane. It lay in shallow water, surrounded by freezing slush. The blizzard had hit the lake hard enough to break up the sheet ice and crack it into pieces too small to grind through the sides of the pontoons.

The plane had been driven across into this corner of the lake, along with the sludge. The shoreward-swung tail was only a biscuit toss out from the solid bank. Garth hastened to fetch small trunks and pieces of rotted logs from the down timber under the nearest trees. By tossing out chunks of log on the snow-covered sludge and bog, he was able to make a slender footbridge with pairs of trunks.

The last extension proved tough and go. Cross pieces and stringers drove down under his weight into the sludge-filled water and the mud beneath. But he had made a dash of it. His hands clutched hold of the rudder before he could sink.

He climbed upon the tail, ran forward to the cabin, and swung inboard. The frozen body of Constable Dillon lay on the floor where he had placed it. He buckled the cartridge belt with its holstered pistol about his own waist, took the keys and handcuffs from Dillon's pocket, and climbed out to scramble forward into the cockpit.

The side of the cockpit had been pierced by several bullets. But when Huxby fired at the drifting plane, in his attempt to kill the supposed fugitives, he had aimed with great care to avoid damage to the instruments and controls and the motor.

After removing the breaker points from the magneto, Garth ran back to the tail of the plane. Here came the greatest of his risks. The bridge poles had risen to the surface again, but the outermost cross logs remained embedded in the mud under the water.

He let himself down sideways. As his moccasins touched the slender trunks, he let go of the rudder and leaped. Though the ends of the poles shot downwards, his swift dash carried him up their sharp slant to the next pair of trunks.

The rest of the improvised bridge was fairly firm. A single misstep anywhere along it would have landed him in deep bog; but he had done far too much canoeing and rough-ground running to lack balance or sure-footedness.

Safe back on solid ground, he at once stepped into his snowshoes and headed straight away from the shore into a dense growth of spruce. There he circled to the right towards the glacier gulch, keeping well back from the lake.

"Mountain of Hellfire"

Emits Ammoniacal Gases

Over a great area on the frontier between Baluchistan and Persia everything is dead. Not a bird, beast, or reptile, not even an insect, survives. They have been gassed by the "Mountain of Hellfire"—as the Persians call the volcano of Koh-i-Tafatan. The crater pours out dense clouds of ammoniacal gas which destroy every living thing and even burn up all plant life, says Tit-Bits Magazine.

This is the only mountain which produces this particular gas, but not the only one which exudes poison gas. In 1912 the volcano of Katmai in Alaska exploded, producing the biggest crater in the world, which is now known as the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes. Here sulphurous gas streams out from rifts, and it is death to approach one of these deadly vents.

The Sakura Shima volcano in Japan blew up in 1914 and overwhelmed the city of Kagoshima. The loss of life was over 70,000, and a great number of these people were suffocated by pestilential gases which rushed up from earthquake fissures a long way from the mountain itself.

Before the great Chilean earthquake of 1857 poison gas rose in the floor of the Bay of Payta and killed enormous quantities of fish and crabs. They floated on the surface and were washed up on the beach, forming a wall-like line three to four feet high and twelve miles long.

The most ghastly disaster of recent times was the destruction of the beautiful city of St. Pierre by a cloud of gas and dust flung out by Mont Pelee. Within a matter of moments 40,000 people were blotted out.

Dockside Slangage

"Luters," "scurfers," and "toshers" are among the quaint nicknames given to the workers in London's dockland. A "luter" is a man who clears mud from the beds of barges, a "scurfer" is one who scrapes away the crust from the insides of ships' boilers, and a "tosher" is a waterman who searches for stray bits of floating timber or dredges for a wet haul of coal. A coal boat that ducks her funnel when she passes beneath the bridges is known as a "flat-iron," a vessel belonging to the Steam Navigation company is called a "Navy," and the river police are humorously dubbed "Lord Trenchard's Navy."—Tit-Bits Magazine.

PEOPLE BEFORE PROPERTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 8:26-37.

GOLDEN TEXT—No servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.—Luke 16:13.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus With His Friends in a Storm.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus With His Friends in a Storm.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Sympathy or Selfishness?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Human Welfare Before Financial Profit.

After his teaching by the parable of the soil and the lighted candle, Jesus exhibited his credentials, enforcing his teaching by demonstrations of his mighty power.

I. Jesus Calming the Storm (vv. 22-25).

In this miracle he demonstrated his power over nature.

1. Jesus asleep (v. 23). While the disciples were sailing the ship the Master fell asleep.

2. The frightened disciples (vv. 23, 24). The storm seems to have been an unusual one. These sturdy men were used to storms, but as their ship was being filled with water they awoke Jesus with their cry of fear.

3. Jesus rebuked the wind and water (v. 24). At his word there was a great calm. We can with confidence put our trust in Jesus Christ.

4. Jesus rebuked the disciples (v. 25). After rebuking the raging elements, he turned to the disciples. He did not rebuke them for waking him, but for their lack of faith.

II. Jesus Casting Out Demons (vv. 26-39).

In this mighty act Jesus' power over demons was demonstrated. Demon possession was in that day, and it is today, an awful reality. The characteristics are often similar to cases of insanity, and many are called insane, who are really demon-possessed.

1. Jesus met by the demoniac (vv. 26-29). This poor man's suffering was dreadful. He abode in the tombs without clothing. At the sight of Jesus he made an outcry and fell down before him and besought him not to torment him. There is no doubt in the mind of demons as to the reality of a place of torment.

2. Jesus' question (v. 30). He asked him, "What is thy name?" His purpose was to bring the real man to consciousness, to enable him to distinguish between himself and the demon who held him. The answer shows that the man thought his case was hopeless. He said, "Legion," which meant that many demons had entered into him.

3. The demons' request (vv. 31, 32). They asked permission to enter into a herd of swine.

4. Their request granted (vv. 32, 33). Just why this was done we do not know. Since Jesus did it, we must believe that it was right and wise.

5. The effect upon the people (vv. 34-37).

a. The keepers of the swine went and made it known in the city and country.

b. The people made investigation. They saw the man sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in his right mind, and heard the testimony of those who had seen what was done.

c. The multitude besought Jesus to depart from them. How sad it is that in the face of the mighty works of Jesus men will not open their hearts to him.

6. The request of the healed man (vv. 38, 39). He desired to be with Jesus. This was natural and right, but his responsibility was to go home and show to the people there what great things God had done for him.

III. Jesus' Power Over Disease (vv. 43-48).

Jesus heals a woman with an issue of blood. Observe:

1. Her helpless condition (v. 43). She had been a great sufferer for twelve long years (Mark 5:26).

2. Her faith (v. 44). Her faith was demonstrated by pressing her way through the thronging multitude.

3. Her confession (v. 47). She thought furtively to get the blessing, but Jesus had her make a public confession.

4. Christ's words of encouragement (v. 48). He told her that it was her faith, not her touch, that saved her, and bade her go in peace.

IV. Jesus Raises the Dead (vv. 40-42; 50-56).

1. Jairus' request (vv. 40-42). His only daughter lay dying. He besought Jesus to come to his house.

2. Jairus informed of his daughter's death (v. 49).

3. Jesus' assurance (v. 50).

4. The skeptical mourners (51-53).

5. The daughter raised (vv. 54-56).

A Harsh Word

To be silent, to suffer, to pray whenever I cannot act, is acceptable to God. A disappointment, a contradiction, a harsh word received, and endured as in his presence, is worth more than a long prayer.

Our Relation to God

Vice and virtue chiefly imply the relation of our actions to men in this world; sin and holiness rather imply their relation to God and the other world.

Women More Vicious Than Men, Says J. Edgar Hoover

Take it from no less an authority than J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, the female of the species is more deadly than the male. That is, women are more to be feared than men. Especially does this hold true where criminals are concerned. Women criminals, he asserts, excel in the will to kill. Statistics kept by the bureau of investigation reveal that the percentage of women charged with crimes of violence is greater than similar offenses charged to men. Although only 6.9 per cent of the persons arrested in the United States in October were women, these women showed a greater tendency toward murder than all the males arrested.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Alone in a Crowd

Joys of city life are often catalogued; but the chief one is left out—that you are let alone; sometimes, too much so.

OLD MOTHER HUBBARD
HAS FILLED HER BARE CUPBOARD
WITH ONIONS AND STEAKS AND CHEESES;
HER STOMACH FEELS GRAND
SINCE SHE KEEPS TUMS ON HAND . . .
SHE EATS WHAT SHE DARN WELL PLEASES!

NO ALKALIES FOR ACID INDIGESTION

MILLIONS have found they do not need to drench their stomachs with strong, caustic alkalies. Physicians have said this habit often brings further acid indigestion. So much more safe and sensible to simply carry a roll of Tums in your pocket. Munch 3 or 4 after meals—or whenever troubled by heartburn, gas, sour stomach. Try them when you feel the effects of last night's party, or when you smoke too much. Tums contain a wonderful antacid which neutralizes acid in the stomach, but never over-alkalizes stomach or blood. As pleasant to eat as candy and only 10c at any drug store.

Rid Yourself of Kidney Poisons

DO you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination; backache, headache, dizziness, loss of energy, leg pains, swellings and puffiness under the eyes? Are you tired, nervous—feel all unstrung and don't know what is wrong?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly for functional kidney disorder permits excess waste to stay in the blood, and to poison and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. You can get the genuine, time-tested Doan's at any drug store.

DOAN'S PILLS

STRENGTH ALL GONE

MRS. R. M. Clark of 217 No. Horton St., Jackson, Mich., said: "Eight years ago I was all run down—my strength all gone. I couldn't do my housework. I started taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I rested better at night and I improved and I gained in strength. 'Prescription' is absolutely the best tonic I have ever used." No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness" is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Miliesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Miliesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

Start using these delicious, effective anti-acid, gently laxative wafers today. Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letterhead. Select Products, Inc., 4402 23rd St., Long Island City, N. Y.

Valor Is Stability of One's Courage and of the Heart

The estimate and valor of a man consists in the heart and in the will; there his true honor lies. Valor is stability, not of arms and legs, but of courage and the soul; it does not lie in the valor of our horse, nor of our arms, but in ourselves. He that falls obstinate in his courage, if his legs fall him, fights upon his knees.—Montaigne.

Don't Guess But Know

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's
Well - Being to Unknown
Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this — and see that you get what you want.
